

Copyright © 2004 by John Wiley & Sons, Inc.

To provide a plant not showing livestock toxicity due to symbiotic fungi with which it is infected, and having strong resistance to pests, symbiotic fungus comprising a filamentous fungus belonging to the genus Neotyphodium, wherein a filamentous fungus whose final metabolic product is chanoclavine, is artificially introduced into a plant to infect the plant.